What is Romance Divas all about?

We're so glad you asked and we're even happier you're interested.

Romance Divas started as a conversation between two friends who met online. That conversation changed from a "what if" into a shared dream, and finally, that vision became a reality.

Romance Divas is the kind of place we always wanted to hang out in when we were online, but couldn't find. A friendly place where the only thing people got serious about was writing great romance. A place to make friends, have fun, learn about the wonderful, challenging craft of writing, and find support for the roller coaster a writer's life can be. And here we are!

Why Divas?

Diva comes from the Italian, meaning goddess, from the Latin - dva, feminine of divus divine.

Now, we're not about to get all new age on you...we just want to celebrate who we are as women, as writers, and as daily survivors in the struggle to get published. If you can relate to any of that, we probably don't need to explain the meaning behind calling ourselves Divas any further. If you can't, maybe you were looking for Digital Internet Voice Appliances or something...

If you're a guy, that's cool too. We welcome the weaker sex. Without you, we'd have no hero to torture, no one to kill bugs or take out trash, and hey, let's face it...we can't live without you! So, DivaDudes, feel free to join in the fun!

To us, DIVA stands for Daring, Intelligent, Vivacious Authors. Are you a Diva? (Or a DivaDude?) We're Divas and proud of it!

Who are the Divas behind the madness?

We're Jax Crane and Kristen Painter. We're friends, critique partners, and writers. We have every intention of making this site the best place for romance writers on the web.

Best Wishes for Great Writing,

Jax Crane & Kristen Painter
