HOT READ, PERFECT FOR SUMMER!

Whether you are looking for lighthearted comedy, serious drama or something in between 'Hink If You Love Real Men' will have you laughing and crying, but in a good way.

A sexually charged atmosphere of romance draws the reader into each of these very different stories. Alexander, Britton, Donovan & Leigh depict some of the most enduring female fantasies, in a fresh way.

Estrella wants to be a 'Naughty Girl' so badly, but she just doesn't have the nerve. Until her boss leaves town, trusting her with the keys to her red convertible and high rise apartment. Carrie Alexander taps into the idea of becoming someone you're not to get what you've always wanted.

Pamela Britton's 'Wanted: One Hot-Blooded Man' is darker, more psychologically gripping than the other stories. After a devastating rape by her fiancé, Bree Miller hopes her first love can help her defeat her fear of intimacy.

'Have Mercy', the final installment of Win Mackland's movie trilogy is due in her agents desk in just three weeks and she is, well, unmotivated. To write modern day super hero Maximillian Mercy, Win's always needed a certain kind of inspiration and she's hit a dry spell. Her agent sets her up in his cabin so she'll be free of distractions, except for neighbor Mac MacBeth. Susan Donovan will have you laughing out loud as Win and her borrowed poodle try to make it in the woods, and drooling over Win's superhero come to life in Mac.

Raven has made up her mind. No matter how she pines for him, she cannot make a life with a SEAL. She knows all too well what the absences and fear did to her parents. On leave, it's 'Reno's Chance' to make Raven see she is strong enough, and that he has no intention of waiting another minute before he has her.

Toss it in your beach bag, tote it in your carry-on. 'Honk If You Love Real Men' is just what you need to set the tone for a fantasy, whether you're jetting to parts unknown or staying right in your own backyard.
