

THE LAST TIME I SAW PARIS

By Elizabeth Adler

St. Martins Press, 2001

Reviewed by :: Barbara Gisondi

Lara Lewis has it all - a house in the Pacific Heights section of San Francisco, a beach house in Carmel, two wonderful kids, a loyal dog, and Bill, her husband of 25 years. But there's trouble in paradise. Bill has left her for a younger woman, effectively canceling Lara's planned second honeymoon trip to Paris.

So, what's a woman in her mid-forties to do? Lara escapes to the beach, meets a younger man and takes him to Paris with her!

Part romance, part women's fiction and part travelogue, Elizabeth Adler takes us on a meandering journey through the streets of Paris, the French countryside, and the Riviera beach towns as Lara finds herself and realizes that love does not have an age limit.

Elizabeth Adler is the author of numerous titles including 'Fortune is a Woman' and 'The Rich Shall Inherit'. Her website is www.elizabethadler.com.

'The Last Time I Saw Paris' is the most enchanting book I've read in a long time. It has a little bit of everything – likeable characters, fascinating settings, an emotional epiphany and a satisfying ending.

5 Kisses